I am an energetic, well-balanced and calm person with good communication skills and ability to cope with a dynamic working environment. A team player, people-oriented, loyal, organized and confident, always looking positively without going extreme or panic.

I discovered my passion for web development one year ago; It was then when it became clear what I wanted to do for a living. I pursued this path until I received enough confidence in HTML, CSS, JS. I took a beginner's online course, where I discovered the love for code. After that, I started the never-ending journey of becoming a frontend web developer along with sharpening my eye for backend.
